LITTLE TIGER

Welcome to the Little Tiger catalogue 2025

We are excited to welcome some new stars to the Little Tiger list this year. Laura Dockrill's lyrical I Am Strong Just Being Me (p.14) illustrated by Kip Alizadeh offers an alternative to stereotypes around strength; I'm Going to Make a Friend (p.17) by Darren Chetty and Sandhya Prabhat explores the challenges of forming new friendships; and Jessica Meserve's Our Tree (p.13) is a stunning tale of tolerance, togetherness and the power of community. Firm favourites are back with Bush Baby declaring I Really, Really Love My Noisy Bum (p.7), accompanied by a board book edition of I Really, Really Need a Wee (p.50). Clive Penguin is learning to fly (sort of) in his latest adventure (p.19) and obnoxious goose Hank returns in Hank Meets Frank (p.12), alongside a novelty board book addition Hank Goes Peck (p.51).

Blockbuster board book series You're My Little . . . has reached the milestone of 10 million copies sold worldwide, and we have three new titles in 2025 including a Christmas outing for Cuddle Bug (p.48). The Story of . . . hits those zeitgeist moments with Taylor Swift and Oasis (p.35) featuring in this year's offering.

Magical new novelty formats include Glow (p.45), a cased board book with lights and sounds; and Magic Torch: Ghost Hunt, a book where curious readers use the torch provided to reveal images hidden in UV ink (p.54).

In non-fiction, we celebrate women in sport with double Paralympic gold medallist Danielle Brown's Shoot for the Stars (p.73). It's a Brave Young World (p.73) is the ultimate guide to getting through those tricky secondary school years by youth advocate Anu Adebogun, and we return to the world of Hide-and-seek History in The Vikings (p.70).

Fiction sees the launch of Clem Fatale (p.88), a rollicking historical tale set in 1950s London; Guardians of the New Moon (p.85), an adventure-filled introduction to the animals of the lunar calendar; and NOT My Superpower (p.85), a hilarious new take on the superhero genre from award-winning author Nathanael Lessore.

Older readers can discover Rock Band (p.100), a fresh and funny new series celebrating Black girlhood; This Feast of a Life (p.99), a delicious story of two people brought together by food; and cosy, pumpkin-spiced sapphic rom-com Sad Girl Hours (p.101).

As always, we hope you find something to delight and inspire you within these pages. Enjoy!

Jayde Perkin and Filigrana de Ideas

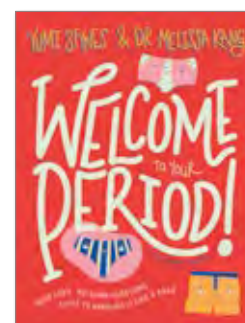

Shoot for the Stars helps girls nurture a passion for sport and smash through barriers to progress.

Drawing on stories from awesome athletes, as well as Danielle's own gold-medal-winning experiences (and most importantly, the hiccups along the way), Shoot for the Stars gives practical examples of how to overcome obstacles, find the courage to dig deep and discover sporting success on your terms.

Written by double Paralympic gold medallist Danielle Brown.

Clem Fatale Has Been Betrayed
Eve Wersocki Morris & Honie Beam

London, 1951: Clem Fatale, the youngest crook in the city, is on a mission to find her dad, who has gone missing along with a valuable prize.

Along with her prisoner and/or sidekick Gilbert (depends whom you're asking), Clem sets off on a rip-roaring chase through the London underworld. But pursued by friends and foes alike, will Clem be able to find her father in time? Or will the most sinister villain this side of the river put a stop to her plans?

Beneath the pearly lights of the big city, in the alleyways and alcoves painted black with smog, you can bet that there will be crooks and criminals, gangsters and no-good 'uns making mischief in the midnight hours. They stick to the shadows. Moonlight can send those thieves scuttling back to their dens. No law-dodger has the guts to pull a heist when a full moon is grinning in the night sky, brighter than a bobby's torch. No one, that is, except Clem Fatale and the Spider Gang. And tonight the moon was on their side.

This Feast of a Life

NEW

Cynthia So

Auden is finding different ways to be herself. The first – using their new chosen name, which feels most authentically them. The second – starting a food blog where they can share their passion for food, through family recipes and the stories behind them. And when the blog brings them Valerie, they discover more than they'd ever expected.

It's been over a year since Valerie lost her beautiful, vibrant mum who loved cooking. Since then, Valerie and her dad have drifted further and further apart, the kitchen left cold and empty. Then Valerie finds Auden's blog, which sparks something in her. Could she have found a recipe for happiness?

A Flash of Neon

Sophie Cameron

Laurie loves stories. She loves reading them in her mums’ bookshop in their small Scottish town. She loves sharing them with new readers. She also loves telling stories about people she’s not yet met and places she’s not yet been. But when one of these people comes crashing into Laurie’s world, it turns her whole life upside down.

Neon is the boy Laurie’s been dreaming of for the last six months, and he’s exactly as she had created him – down to his ability to play any instrument he picks up. And when he steps off the train and into Laurie’s world, he teaches her what it means to be real . . .

A Flash of Neon is a fantastical story about imagination and friendship from the author of Away With Words.

Rock Band

Leah Osakwe

Galaxy has always known she was destined for fame and fortune. She has the voice, the dance moves and is an excellent song writer. So when she spots a poster at school announcing that they’ll be hosting a talent show, she knows she has to enter. Beyoncé and Lauryn Hill got their start being in a band, so Galaxy decides she’ll form her own. How hard can it be?

Unfortunately, the only students interested in joining her are the notorious loud-mouthed troublemaker of the school, a socially awkward goody two shoes, and Galaxy’s baby sister Zaya of all people.

Is Galaxy’s chance at stardom over before it’s even begun?

Wintour's Reign

Brian Dungan

In Wintour's Game, a young thief named Alex Wintour discovered she was an Oracle Temporal – someone could see glimpses of the future. This set her on a collision course with teen millionaire Colman Reece, who needed her help to steal a weapon called the Chronolith. Then their epic heist ended with Alex learning she was the Chronolith, trapped inside the mysterious Temple as it went up in flames.

When Alex is rescued from the burning building, the last person she expects to see is a woman named Christine, a key figure to understanding her mysterious past. But before Alex can get any answers, Christine is snatched away. Alex is desperate to find her, but with Disciples from around the world on her tail, and newfound powers to control as the Chronolith, she’ll need to decide who her real allies are first. No matter what she chooses, the Temporal world lies in her hands . . .

Sad Girl Hours

Anna Zoe Quirke

Saffron struggles with seasonal affective disorder (SAD) and is dreading autumn and winter. She took time off in her first year at university and can’t afford to do the same this year if she’s going to achieve her dream of being an astrophysicist. She’s managed to keep it a secret from her friends – fearing that they won’t want to spend time with her if they see her at her lowest – but it’s getting harder. Especially when she meets Nell.

Nell – wannabe poet, autistic and proud, and lover of autumn and winter – is determined to show Saffron everything the seasons have to offer. The two grow close, and when Saffron confides in Nell, romance blooms. But with Saffron struggling to keep a lid on her mental health and Nell figuring out her own sexual identity, things soon spiral out of control.

A dual-perspective sapphic rom-com perfect for fans of Casey McQuiston and Alice Oseman.

Praise for Something to be Proud Of:

“A sparkling debut about friendship, solidarity and the joy and heartache of queer teenhood, from Anna Zoe Quirke, a witty, fresh new voice in YA.”

How to Survive a Horror Sequel

Scarlett Dunmore

How to Survive a Horror Movie saw horror enthusiast Charley attempt to uncover a serial killer at her school, with the help of the ghosts of her former classmates.

Now, almost a year after uncovering the killer, Charley is slowly regaining some semblance of a normal life in a small village called Briar’s Hill. When she befriends the local misfits and learns of her new home’s ties to witchcraft, she realises it might just be the key to understanding her ability to speak to the dead. With Halloween approaching, she’ll do anything to prepare for the inevitable re-emergence of the Harrogate Killer – who she’s convinced is still alive. But when they do make their dramatic return, blood is spilt, and an entirely new terror is unleashed.

Before Charley can flee town, she finds the dead are talking to her again, and if she doesn’t start listening, they’ll begin inhabiting the bodies of those around her to get her attention. Charley’s horror knowledge will be put to the test once more, and if she and the Harrogate Killer don’t figure out how to work together, they’ll be trapped in Briar’s Hill forever. Or worse – buried in it.
